ORCHARD CONTINUES BLOODY TALE WITHOUT APPARENT APPRECIATION OF ITS HORROR

HE BUTCHERED FOR PAY IN COLD BLOOD

DIRECTLY IMPLICATES ACCUSED OFFICIALS IN CRIMES

THEY DEVISED AND PAID HIM

Occasional Miscarriages of Plans Saved Many Marked for Slaughter by "Inner Circle."

BOISE, Idaho, June 6.—Orchard resumed his story this morning, beginning with the recital of how he obtained money from J. Wolf, whom he called collector for Pettibone. He took up again the story of the attempted assassination of Bradley in San Francisco, saying that he learned Bradley's habits from Bradley's servants.

Failed in a Killing

Orchard said Haywood and Pettibone wanted him to assassinate Judge Gabbert of the supreme court, and that he tried but was unsuccessful. He told of the attempt to assassinate Gov. Peabody again, and said Peabody crossed the buried bomb, but two coal wagons were passing at the same time and they were afraid to pull the wire.

Rode in Street.

Orchard also told of other attempts to assassinate Peabody and Gabbart, and that he tried to kill Frank Hearne, president of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, but failed. He said the family of Haywood purchased a horse and buggy for him and his companion so they could move around hurriedly and unnoticed.

Tricks in Murder Plot

Orchard said it was Haywood who ordered him to kill Justice Goddard, of the supreme court, because Goddard had decided the eight hour law unconstitutional, and was a menace to organized labor. He said that Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone jointly ordered him and Steve Adams to Canon City, the home of Peabody, to "kill him sure." Peabody then retired from office. In order to get entry into the Peabody home he secured, upon the recommendation of the state labor officials, a contract as agent for the Mutual Life Insurance company.

Made Thirty Pound Bomb

The witness said he could easily blow up Peabody. Then he went back to Denver, and reported to Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, who told him to make a bomb. He described the bomb he made, and Hawley introduced the lead receptacle which has been loaded with thirty pounds of powder. He said that on returning to Canon City he found that Peabody's house was being repaired and that the governor had changed his habits.

Wanted Run for Money

After some discouragements he gave up trying to get Peabody. Pettibone told him he would have to do something for the money he had spent, so he tried several times to kill Gabbert, but only succeeded in killing innocent spectators.

General Bell Escaped

Orchard said he and Adams drove about to watch for a chance to get General Bell, but failed. Moyer finally ordered them to quit, saying he didn't want any more jobs done in Denver.

A Tale of Horror

In three hours and a half yesterday Orchard confessed to nineteen murders. His narrative of blood is but half told, the prosecutors of Haywood assert. Orchard, as he is known on the court records, has not so far uttered a word of regret or repentance. He tells without a tremor of killing unsuspecting men. His tone is not boastful. He is just a cold-blooded murdering brute made in the semblance of a man.

The Death List

Here are the crimes Harry Orchard yesterday admitted committing on orders from Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone or other officers of the Western Federation of Miners:

He set off one of the bombs that wrecked the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine and killed two men, one of whom, Smith, he knew.

He placed a bomb in the Indicator mine at Telluride, Colo., which, when exploded, killed Charles McCormack and Melt Beck, the superintendent, and his assistant.

He pulled the wire with Steve Adams that exploded 100 pounds of dynamite under the Independence depot and killed 100 non-union miners.

He shot Lyte Gregory, a mine owners' detective, in Denver, firing three loads of buckshot from a sawed-off gun.

He followed Gov. Peabody of Colorado for two weeks, waiting with

DAMN KNOX WITH FAINT SUPPORT

INDORSED BY CONVENTION TODAY BUT "JOB" IS RUMORED

LUKE WARM DELEGATION IDEA

Members Will be for Knox Just a Little While, and Then Will Go to Taft Support

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 6.—The state convention today endorsed Knox for president.

Knox lithographs bearing the inscription "Our Next President" and white badges inscribed "Knox—1908" are very much in evidence. In fact, the launching of the senator's candidacy, while a side issue to the real work for which the convention was called, has overtopped everything else in interest. As the favorite son of the Keystone state, Senator Knox is to be pushed earnestly and systematically during the months between now and the time for holding the national convention next summer. The boomers on the ground here declare they have no second choice for the presidential nomination, and will not enter the national convention with any thought other than winning with their favorite.

(By J. C. Welliver.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—(Special.)—There is a string tied to President Roosevelt's acquiescence in the Knox boom. This is the story that comes from quarters close to the administration. It is of interest at this time in view of the fact that the Pennsylvania republican convention today endorsed Senator Knox for the presidency with apparent unanimity and enthusiasm.

Senator Knox's friends represent persistently that the president is favorable to Knox. The story is repeated with great regularity that the president did not include Knox in the allegations that a conspiracy had been formed to name an anti-Roosevelt man. This has caused some surprise here inasmuch as the White house view as presented when the $5,000,000 conspiracy was alleged was understood to be that while Knox was not in the alleged conspiracy he was being used thereby. On the other hand, it is not long since Representative Barchfeld and other Pennsylvanians went to the White house and came away saying the president had declared he would be greatly pleased with the nomination of Knox.

This caused no litle wonderment in some of the presidential camps, and particularly among the Taft followers The Knox followers were, of course, greatly pleased.

Not Deeply Sincere

It appears now, from information that comes from Pennsylvania and from administration sources, that while Senator Knox is endorsed by the Harrisburg convention, when it comes to the selection of the Pennsylvania delegation to the national convention the influence of the president is likely to be felt. Senator Knox will be allowed to get the delegation but a strong effort will be made to choose delegations that are for Taft or some Roosevelt man on second choice. So far as possible, the plan will be to pick a lukewarm Knox delegation, that is one that will desert him after certain complimentary votes. One of the most prominent anti-Knox republican politicians of Pennsylvania while here recently told friends of the plan. There is reason to believe it meets with favor in White House quarters, but that for the present Knox will not be openly opposed. Whether the Knox forces, with the backing of the Pennsylvania republican machine, will be able to prevent its being carried out is, of course, a matter of uncertainty.

BRIDE DIES

LANSING, Mich., June 6.—Soon after a merry wedding party, and within fifteen hours of her marriage, Mrs. Homer Decker died at her home here. She was 41 years of age, and this was her second marriage. The excitement of the occasion and the preparations for the wedding had undermined the health of the bride.

NORTH SIDE FOR CAUSEWAY MARKET

SAY IT WOULD CEMENT THE TWO SECTIONS

PROGRESSIVE LEAGUE ACTIVE

Will Make Further Effort to Have a Midnight Car Run to the North Side

The North Side Progressive league last evening paved the way for a connecting link between the North and South sides.

A number of important committees reported, among them the city market committee, which has for some time been investigating plans for building a market on the causeway between the two sections of the city.

Six members were appointed, who will offer their assistance to the board of trade insecuring the market on the causeway.

L. E. Lavaque, the Rose street grocer, formerly president of the league made a lengthy discussion in regard to the installation of the new causeway market and advocated various ideas which are very much in favor of it. The money received for the old site at the corner of Fourth and King street will be used in assisting to pay for the new site. In building the market here, Mr. Lavaque said that it would be more centrally located and would form a connecting link between the North and South sides and thus erase what little strife still exists between the two sections.

He said he was for the city of La Crosse as a whole, and if the market was built in this location, there would soon be a number of residences built in this location, there would be no North or South side, but a city of La Crosse.

The committee on the north side public bath also reported, and in a very favorable manner. The police committee rendered a report and will now circulate a petition and report for further action in the near future.

The owl car is now running at 11:20, but they say that they will continue their work until they have secured a car at midnight.

The league is gradually growing and they now have 58 active members, all but one of whom are from the north side. South side business men and all those over 21 years are eligible to membership.

They expect to have 100 members in the next few weeks and last evening appointed a membership committee for that purpose.

SWEETHEART OF 1861

Romance Before the War to End in Marriage

DES MOINES, Ia., June 6.—The announcement comes from Blencoe, Ia., today that Thomas J. Strupper, aged 71 years, a section man there, will next month wed Mrs. Julia Comstock of Warren, O., aged 72 years, to whom he was engaged before the war. This will be the sixth time Strupper has taken a wife. He has been twice in jail for bigamy and, it is said, his last venture may place him there again. Strupper recently was the center of a sensation when he brought a 20 year old bride, Eva Scott, from Sidney, Ia., where he was married to her in 1906. He was accompanied by his third wife, Mrs. J. A. Kelly, aged 65, who had been nursed back to health by the Scott girl.

LA CROSSE NORMAL BILL IS PASSED BY THE SENATE

SENATOR BAKER CASTS THE ONLY NEGATIVE VOTE

2-4 MILE SALOON BILL IS UP

Long Debate Ends in Engrossment of the Ainsworth Uniform Text Book Bill

MADISON, Wis., June 6.—(Special).—The senate today passed the La Crosse normal bill, providing $210,000 for the erection of a school in that city. The only negative vote was cast by Senator Barker.

After a long and spirited debate the Ainsworth bill, providing for uniformity of text books used in the public schools of the counties was sent to engrossment.

The senate also killed the spring shooting amendment, and ordered the engrossment of the bill prohibiting saloons within a radius of three-fourths of a mile of the state university.

LAND SUIT IN COURT

Mentis-Stavrum Litigation Over Breach of Warranty

The case of Albert Mentis vs. Thomas Stavrum is being heard in circuit court before Judge J. J. Fruit this afternoon. Higbee and Higbee appear for the defendant and W. S. Burrows for the plaintiff.

This is a suit for breach of warranty, the plaintifff ffclaiming that less land was delivered to him than described in the deed. A strip of land four feet in width adjoining a lot on Second street between Main and State street is the contended property. The sale was consumated four years ago.

INDELIBLE INK WILL COST LIFE

Laundry Girl at Pittsburg Stricken by Blood Poison Due to Mistake

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 6.—The skin of Mary Offers, a laundry girl at the Allegheny general hospital, has turned to a deep lavender color, and she has been taken ill. The physicians pronounce it a case of blood poisoning most rare, and it has brought out an interesting story. The girl has worn tight shoes which she colored with indelible ink, thinking it was shoe polish. She got her shoes wet, and the ink, working through the thin leather, got to her feet, which became discolored. The discoloration spread all over her body. Physicians say she cannot live.

TRUST GETS AUDITORIUM

CHICAGO, June 6.—The Auditorium theater, the largest playhouse in America, which has been the scene for years of Chicago's charity balls, massmeetings, and concerts, will be given over to vaudeville on Sept. 1.

Negotiations conducted for several weeks between the Chicago Auditorium association and Klaw & Erlanger, heads of the theatrical combine, were closed yesterday afternoon. An agreement for a ten year lease was reached. Rental for the term is $675,000.

Some time ago it was announced that William A. Brady had obtained the Auditorium lease, but it has developed that the deal was put through for Klaw & Erlanger.

Vaudeville acts have been booked. It is the intention of the lessees and those associated with them to present vaudeville on a scale never before attempted. George M. Cohan will write short musical plays and comedies for the new combine and Fred Thompson, formerly of the New York Hippodrome, is to bok a stage circus and other big acts.

ANTHRACITE ROADS TO "GET THEIRS"

GOVERNMENT BILL WILL SHORTLY BE FILED IN CASE

FROM MINES TO FIRE PLACE

Administration Will Attempt to Show an Absolute Monopoly Controlling Coal Supply

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—The bill the government is preparing against the Anthracite roads may be filed within two weeks. The complaint points out that the roads have had a grip of steel upon the anthracite fields, the annual output of which is one hundred and twelve million dollars, or sixty million tons. The complaint also will show that the roads owned most of the stock in the coal companies, and having tidewater connections, controlled the coal output of the nation from its bed in the ground to the fire place.

CROKER IS HAPPY

Won Race and Got Revenge Thereby

LONDON, Eng., June 6.—Richard Croker is the happiest man in England. Not only did he win the derby yesterday, but he evened up scores with the English Jockey club. When these autocrats of the English turf barred Croker from the privileges of the Newmarket those intimate with the characteristics of the former Tammany chieftan were certain he would not take the snub lying down. With a patience developed in his long political career and with the taciturnity typical of the man, Croker quietly waited an opportune moment for his revenge. It came at least. By sending Orby first under the wire at Epsom he showed the Jockey club that though it might debar him from training at Newmarket it could not prevent him from capturing the blue ribbon of the English turf. Revenge is sweet to Croker tonight, and it is doubtful if a king's ransom would delight him near as much as the victory of yesterday.

Grand Race Truly Run

The race was truly run—and the best horse won. The great majority of the crowd, disappointed over the defeat of the favorite, Slieve Gallion, acknowledged the superiority of the Irish-American colt.

MOTHERS GET BABES MIXED

WEBSTER CITY, Ia., June 6.—Two swaddling clothed babies, each under the age of three months, believed to have been exchanged at a dance at the home of Gust Gusthafen, near Marquisville, are the subject of contention as to ownership, and the courts may have to be appealed to to settle the question as to which youngster belongs to which frantic mother.

While the dance was at its merriest, it is claimed, two youthful Germans, who probably never had heard of the little trick of the Virginian in the book by Owen Wister, undressed the children, who slumbered quietly in an upstairs bedroom, and changed their clothing. All was considered a joke until the two newest babes were viewed by the mothers. Both children are boys and are the same age.

The jokers swear they did not undress the babes, as swaddling clothes and safety pins are too much for their clumsy fingers. The parents, however, are sure they did. In their excitement they cannot remember whether it was Chris Loefenberger who had the more hair or Hans Welden, and the matter of hair is all the discriminating difference in the youngsters. The mothers are distracted, not knowing whether to exchange babies or not.

LA CROSSE OCCULIST GETS SECOND HONOR AT WAUKESHA

GATTERDAM DECLINED TO RUN

Closing Features Take Place This Afternoon With Home-Coming Tonight.

WAUKESHA, Wis., June 6.—(Special).—Dr. H. Clay Evenson of La Crosse is vice president of the grand lodge of Elks. He is the only La Crosse man to secure a grand office. The election resulted as follows:

President, George W. Burrows, Madison; vice president, H. C. Evenson, La Crosse; secretary, W. T. Thompson, Racine; treasurer, F. A. La Budde, Oshkosh; chaplain, L. R. S. Ferguson, Hudson. Next year's session will be held at Racine, the first week in June.

The convention unanimously indorsed John R. Gehlor of enosha for the office of grand trustee, the election for which will be held at the grand lodge session at Philadelphia July 15, 16, 17, 18.

Dr. E. A. Gatterdam declined to permit his name to be presented to the convention as a candidate for president. This was a source of disappointment to his friends, who had felt the pulse of the situation and were confident of his election. It is said that Senator Burroughs, who made a great impression in La Crosse during the convention there a year ago, had so inspired the admiration of the La Crosse candidates as to impel him to decline to seek the office in opposition to the Madison candidate.

The social session last evening was a huge success. This morning the delegates took a trolley ride to Waukesha beach, and there spent the afternoon in a yachting trip on the lake. There was a "state championship" ball game between Marshfield and the Wakesha Elks, and band concerts enlivened 'aFarewell Day." The La Crosse delegation will leave Waukesha in the evening for Milwaukee, where they will take the midnight train to which their special car will be attached, arriving in this city at 7 o'clock in the morning.

BULLDOG FOR TEDDY

New Pet Arrives to Win Laurels Lost by Pete

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—There is a new dog at the White house, sent to President Roosevelt to uphold the canine championship of the executive environs, which Pete, the president's bull terrier, failed to do. He arrived there this morning—charges prepaid—in a box addressed to the president, and was carried by an expressman into the office of Secretary Loeb. When the box was opened the dog began to wag his tail and showed an amiable disposition. The sender, according to the express company, is S. M. Smith of Celina, O. The new dog is larger than Pete, and, while disposed to be friendly, looks like a fellow who could give a good account of himself.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 6.—To escape a work-house sentence Frank Tatman, an ex-confederate soldier, this morning ran a race with a mounted policeman and won. Tatman, who is 65 years old, returned last night form the Richmond (Va.) confederate reunion. He had been drinking, and was arrested and brought before Police Judge Riley. He pleaded so hard for mercy that Judge Riley told him if he would win a race from the mounted policeman he could go free. Tatman ran three blocks against the officer's horse and won by three feet.

REID MEASURE TO BE GIVEN TRIAL

A 3-YEARS COMMISSION WILL BE ESTABLISHED

FINAL ARGUMENT IS MADE

Judge Reid, Senator Morris and Assemblyman Miller Before Joint Claims Committee

MADISON, Wis., June 6.—(Special)—It was learned last night that as a result of the arguments presented by Judge Reid and others the joint committee on claims has decided to report for passage the bill providing a state waterway commission.

In an interview this morning Senator Hazelwood confirmed this statement. He says the committee will advise that the duration of the commission shall be fixed at three years. The committee believes that if the plan is of great value a three years' trial will establish the fact, whereupon the legislature can extend the life of the commission. Early action on the measure is expected.

At the hearing yesterday afternoon talks in favor of the measure were made by Senator Thomas Morris, Assemblyman T. H. Miller and Judge Ray S. Reid, all of La Crosse.

Morris Makes Plea

"I think the greatest good such a water commission could do is to give publicity to the subject of uitilizing the Mississippi and other rivers of Wisconsin," declared Senator Morris. "When a public official speaks, he does so with some authority and the public listens. I contend if this bill is passed, the appropriation of 8,000 or $10,000 given, data can be gathered. The commissioner will from this material gathered carry on a campaign of education the people of the state will be interested, pressure can be exerted upon congress, as a result of your assisting us; making it possible for us to take the first step in this matter.

"Senator Burns has just suggested that this is a matter for the federal government. I realize all of that, but we will never get anything from the federal government unless we show interest and activity in this matter. In my opinion if we once get this subject before the people an interest will be shown that will be surprising."

Miller Appears

Dr. Miller made an argument along the same lines. He was tired of seeing the power of the Mississippi river go to waste. He thought some effort should be made to find out if the river can be utilized and if after an investigation, it is found it cannot, it will be worth the price to find this out alone.

Judge Reid Closes

The principal address was given by Judge Reid. He told the committee he was glad the members had seen fit to give a normal school to th city of La Crosse. It would give the city prestige in an educational way. He declared that in his opinion, if the water commission bill were passed sufficient money would be saved by the city of La Crosse alone on coal to build two such normal schools every year.

He declared if the scheme was found feasible other states would be interestd and the national government would see fit to take up the plan. He said he did not believe it necessary to build a six foot channel. The babe was not yet born who would see it finished. He only wanted the state to make an appropriation, and data could be gathered regarding the operating of the cable system in rivers.

Senators Burns and Husting and other members of the committee showed deep interest in the measure.

MOLL USES VERY BAD JUDGEMENT

RENDERS PROTEST DECISION AND THEN CONTRADICTS SELF

IN LA CROSSE-FONDY GAME

When Here He Decided in Favor of the Champs and Now States He Has Rendered No Decision

President Moll of the Wisconsin State league is very inconsistent in his manner of dealing with questions which come under his jurisdiction. He will state one thing one day and turn around the next and contradict it, according to reports which are used as evidence.

When Mr. Moll was in La Crosse Saturday he was asked by a representative of The Tribune if he had rendered a decision on the protest of Manager Hawley of the second game of the opening series with Fond du Lac. His reply was this:

"Yes, I decided the protest in favor of La Crosse as the rules plainly showed where La Crosse was right. As Fond du Lac was so far down in the list, however, I did not announce my decision as the game helped Fond du Lac in its standing.

The Wausau Herald, wishing to get the correct standing of the league, wrote to Mr. Moll about the matter and here is the reply it received:

Editor Herald:—I have your letter of the thirty-first and will say there has been no official decision given out as to the La Crosse-Fond du Lac game in question, but probably will be in a few days, and will let you know at that time.

COLORED RIDER A WONDER

Wins Six Straight Races and Smashes Record at Churchill Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 6.—J. Lee, the colored jockey, won all six races at Churchill Downs yesterday afternoon and some of his mounts were at long prices. This record has been equaled but twice, by Fred Archer and George Fordham, both in England. Monk Overton, another negro, one day at Washington park, Chicago, sixteen years ago, won the first six races, but did not have a mount in the seventh. When Lee rode back to the stand, after winning the last race, he was accorded an ovation by the big crowd. In this race, on Foreigner, he lowered the track record for a mile and three furlongs by nearly two seconds.

What a lot of consolation we old folks get in the thought that so many young folks are wearing glasses.

THE DOPE BOX

Wowee, it was a hard one, but we did "her."

—o—

This afternoon closes the series with Freeport. It will be a great pitchers' duel between Warhop and Jones.

—o—

The home series closes today and the champs leave tonight for Madison where they open tomorrow. The team will be away until June 15.

—o—

Yesterday was a case of the white-breasted Napoleons meeting their Waterloo. They put up a terrific fight. however.

—o—

Freeport bunched six errors in that fatal fifth inning. The champs started out by filling the sacks with no one out. Then Vogt tied the score by rapping a single in right. It was awful doings after this. Twelve men batted.

—o—

The two catches of Medwtzky and Konetchy in the ninth inning were hair raisers. The one of Med's was a long fly in the sun field, and the catch of Ed was of a foul ball near the grand stand.

—o—

Every fan take off his hat to Joe Killian when they see him. Joe caught a foul ball yesterday. He also missed one, but forget about that.

—o—

Schoonhoven made a nice one-handed catch of a fly ball in the fourth inning, preventing a run.

—o—

It was a case of knocking the smile off Miller's face. The Pretzel pitcher has a smile of perpetuity, but was forced to relinquish it for a minute in that fifth inning. Yet it was no particular fault of his.

—o—

Umpire Sanders failed to put in an appearance at the game and Jones of the champs and Darrah of the visitors officiated, giving better satisfaction throughout than the regular umps. Sanders got lost some place it is understood.

—o—

When La Crosse meets Madison on Thursday it will be up against a different team than was seen here, according to reports. Madison has signed a number of new men.

—o—

The Freeport Standard has some very uncomplimentary things to say about Manager Hawley of the champs. They blame him because Umpire Sanders called the game with Freeport Wednesday, stating he told him to do it. That much is a joke as Sanders called the game of his own accord. But Manager Schoonhoven had to offer some excuse to the fans down home.

—o—

Harry Stout, the Milwaukee fight referee, has been signed by President Moll to umpire in the Wisconsin State league. Stout will report for work in Oshkosh on Friday, along with Eddie Cochems, who has also been appointed an arbiter on Moll's staff.

—o—

Although the bad weather is good for teams that are somewhat crippled now but expect to get into shape later, it is mighty bad for the financial side. All games not played now will have to be played out in double headers, and this means that the receipts will fall much below what they otherwise would. When double-headers are played two games are given for the price of one. It is the same with the tie games.

WISCONSIN SENDS 1,000

Skat Players to Be Represented in the National Tournament.

Fully 1,000 skat players of Wisconsin will participate in the national tournament at Chicago on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Arrangements are being made by Robert Schiller, Wilwaukee, one of the directors of the North American league, for a special train to convey the Wisconsin delegation.

John M. Barth, secretary of the league, yesterday wrote Milwaukee players that the official grading of the first twenty-five prizes, aggregating $5,000 in value, has been decided upon. First prize will be a $1,000 gold bond offered by the league. A $750 piano will be given to the winner of second place and a $500 silver service to the third winner. Fourth prize will be a round trip ticket to Hamburg, Germany, donated by President Max Wortsmann of the league.

MAYOR BECKER VETOES FRANCHISE

Turns Down Electric Railway Ordinance

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 6.—Mayor Sherburn M. Becker yesterday vetoed the new franchise ordinance of the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Railway company because it gives exclusive right to the company to certain streets. The mayor believes that the day of the exclusive franchise is past.

The mayor says he wants no repetition of the Central Heating company affair and he recommends that the franchise be amended so as to protect the rights of the city. He can see no reason for giving exclusive rights on two streets not necessary to reach the terminals mentioning a block on Sixth street and Second street between Grand avenue and West Water street, unless it be a move to get control of the streets for the city company.

MILWAUKEE GIRL HONORED

KENOSHA, Wis., June 6.—To a Milwaukee girl was given the highest honor in the gift of the Sisters of St. Mary at Kemper hall when Miss Alice Louise Hibbard, daughter of Charles F. Hibbard of Milwaukee, was awarded one of the two St. Mary's crosses, the most treasured tokens of school life at the hall. The other cross was awarded to Helen Dorsey Brown of Highland Park, Ill.

(By Lefty.)

When the scream and roar of the terrific engagement had subsided, the smoke cleared away from the field of action and an inventory taken of the losses, the battle begrimed and weary troopers withdrew from the field for the night to rest for the struggle of today. It was the first battle of the year between the champs and the Pretzels, the first since peace was declared in 1906 when the husky marksmen of La Crosse came out of the long siege victorious. The fray of yesterday was the kind you hear tell about, a hand to hand fight with the honors practically even, although the star champs came out on top, invading the camp of the enemy eight times while their camp was looted but seven. One final dash in the last stage almost routed the champs, but they gallantly stuck to their posts and heroic work by Medwtzky and Konetchy turned the tide at the psycological moment and brought joy to the hearts of the assembled.

Captain "Duke" Flynn, sent into the field for the day by General Hawley, withstood the attacks of the enemy for three short engagements, but the next move, a flank detour, was disastrous. Fiske took a long shot for two and under cover of a shot by Gwinn in Moore's territory invaded the home of the champs. Starke, like a hero, died to advance Gwinn and General Schoonhoven took a snap shot at the center, bringing Gwinn safely home.

Scatter the Enemy

It was 4.50 o clock when the champs emerged from the brush, double quicked to the front and opened up a terrific bommbardment on Captain Miller, drove him to the shelter and scattered the enemy. This was the fifth engagement of the afternoon and proved to be the victory for the La Crosse division. Vogt sent a one-pounder into the right wing, Bond died, and then when the enemy broke and ran, Medwtzky, Killian and Moore sent sure shots into their ranks. Before Gaspar could be rushed up with reinforcements the damage had been done, seven of Hawley's division crossing the Rubicon. The rout of the enemy was complete, the opposing force showing they could not hold up under fire.

Spring a Coup

However, they sprung a coup a few minutes afterward. Captain Flynn being the center of an attack which again placed the situation in a dubious position. Starke still had ammunition and let one fly in left, advancing two steps when Vogt used poor judgment on Schoonhoven. Lannon scampered away safe on a short field shot and Starke made the camp. With Eide dropped in his tracks Gasper placed a two-pounder in the center, bringing home his two comrades.

Save the Day

What proved to be the real saving of the day for the men in white came n the eighth mixup. After one champ had been carried in Flynn went to Eide's post under a flag of truce. Taking advantage of this opportunity Vogt and Bond let drive in the center with two-pounders and in came Flynn.

Terrible Doings

Seeing they were going to lose the victory the Pretzel company made a last desperate onslaught in the ninth. Ives, with wonderful acuracy, placed one on the outskirts, reaching Bond's post. Ireland succumbed and then Fiske repeated Ive's feat, Ives romping to the canvas. Flynn was muddled for the minute and let Gwinn direct a safe one, Ireland reaching his friends. Another such attack and victory would go flittering. Then Medwtzky and Konetchy pulled off a couple of fielding stunts and the danger was over.

S.S.S. PURIFIES THE BLOOD

There is no other part of our physical system upon which so much depends as upon the blood. The muscles, nerves, bones, sinews, skin, and other portions of the body are sustained, developed and enabled to perform their different duties, because they are supplied with nourishment and healthful properties through the circulation. In various ways the blood becomes contaminated and polluted. A sluggish, inactive condition of the system, and torpid state of the avenues of bodily waste, will leave the refuse and waste matter of the body to sour and form uric and other acids, which are absorbed into the blood and Rheumatism, or some itching, disfiguring skin disease is the result. Muddy, sallow complexions, eruptions, splotches, pimples, etc., all show that some humor has taken root in the circulation and rendered it sour and unfit for nourishing the body. There is scarcely any disease which cannot be traced to the blood. Often the disease-tainted blood of parents is handed down to children and their lives are a continual battle against disease in some form, usually of a scrofulous nature. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood troubles, and until this vital fluid is purified they cannot be cured. For all blood diseases S. S. S. is the best remedy ever put upon the market. This great medicine is made of roots, herbs and barks of recognized blood-purifying and building-up properties. It goes down into the circulation and removes all poisons, impurities and humors, supplies the blood with the healthful properties it needs and completely cures blood diseases of every kind. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Sores and Ulcers, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., because it purifies the blood. Book on the blood and medical advice free.

ON THE ROAD TO NONENITY

"Jim" Tawney, of Winona, was a first class blacksmith. He had a mighty arm, but was never made for the forge. He studied law, and thereafter he proved that with his giant biceps he possessed a giant brain. Tawney "made good" at the bar. The vocabulary acquired when shoeing refractory mules lent force to his argument. He acquired a reputation as a clean-cut and vigorous orator, and politics claimed him for its own. He went to congress and for a time he was "reckoned good." He became an influential member, but even as his abilities and opportunities expanded there was disseminated an impression that Tawney, a product of "the people," was trailing along with the class of politicians whose toadyism to capital and relations with a certain sort of capitalists prevent them from becoming statemen. Tawney became a stand-patter of the stand-patters, a stalwart of the stalwarts.

"Jim" Tawney has seen his best political days. The rut he has traveled in is too deep. He cannot escape its trend. Down in Gettysburg, recently, he made a great speech. If you don't think it was a great speech, ask Harriman, or Rodgers, or Rockefeller. "Jim" was "unalterably opposed" to anything and everything that promised interference with the existing order of things whereby the predatory corporations may plunder and the people pay the fiddler for every grafter's dance.

"Jim" has missed the way the crowd is going. He is trecking over the trail from which has resounded the "tramp, tramp, tramp" of the Depews and Platts and others of that ilk, bound for political oblivion. Thus Tawney is "mooching along" toward innocuous desuetude.

And a milestone on his way is the powerful, deliberate arraignment of his position with which the Pioneer Press, a newspaper that is some pumpkins in Minnesota politics, signalized his Gettysburg address. The Press said:

Congressman Tawney, in his Gettysburg speech on Memorial day, complains that a great many things undertaken by the government today "exceed the legitimate functions of the federal government as conceived by the founders of our institutions and as declared by them in the Constitution of the United States." The list which he makes of the undertakings now carried on by the government, and which he deems to be without constitutional warrant, is a formidable one. It includes pretty nearly everything that marks our government as progressive and beneficent—pretty nearly everything, except the postal system, which has tended to bring the citizen into contact with his government, to make him feel that he has a country, and to realize the worth of his citizenship. It makes no difference to Mr. Tawney how beneficent these undertakings are, or how much better they may be carried on by the federal than by the state governments. They are not nominated in the bond of the Constitution; so he holds them up as tending to obliterate the distinction between state and federal powers which it is desirable should be perpetuated.

Like Secretary Root, however, Mr. Tawney lays the blame for these accretions of governmental functions, claimed to be illegitimate, not upon federal aggressiveness but upon the negligence of the states themselves to exercise unquestioned rights, or to so exercise them as to further the general welfare without as well as within state boundaries. Where the performance of a duty or the supply of a need has involved the taking up of a burden, in taxation or otherwise, the states have been not only willing but eager that the burden should be transferred to the nation. But the congressman's idea that the same beneficent results could have been or might now be secured by the multiplex action of state legislatures as by the action of the federal unit, however beautiful, would be found unworkable in practice. Had we depended on state legislation we should today enjoy none of the benefits which come from the work of the department of agriculture, and but few of those which come from the work of the departments of commerce and labor and of the interior. We should have no western forest reserves, no national irrigation law, no topographical surveys, no weather bureau, no free furnishing of information from Washington on the thousands of topics affecting the business of the country, no national pure food law, no instruction in roadmaking or the management of private forests, no law for the protection of buttermakers, no federal inspection of packing houses such as has recently done so much to limt the sale of diseased meats.

The mention of meat inspection recalls the essential unfairness of Mr. Tawney's attack upon the administration on account of the number of federal inspectors now employed to insure the enforcement of various laws, as compared with the number twelve years ago. The laws requiring them have met a popular demand. For a population of 85,000,000 people, the government now employs about 3,000 special agents or inspectors in an endeavor to see that the enactments of congress are complied with. That is one inspector for each 28,333 people. When the congressman theatrically exclaims that the inspectors number "three full regiments!" and that their cost to the country is about $9,000,000, he should also note the ratio of their numbers to population, and the fact that the fees they collect go a long way toward paying for their services; also the further fact that the people get the worth of the money.

The congressman's complaint concerning the number of inspectors recalls another circumstance; namely, that it was on his motion that an appropriation bill for the payment of inspectors in the interior department was amended to prevent any portion of the money being used to pay for the inspection of homestead claims prior to the issue of patents. President Roosevelt's order for the inspection of such claims promised to be one of the most effective possible measures for checking land frauds. But the denial by congress of the money to pay additional inspectors made the enforcement of the order the cause of hardships, through delay, too many honest setlers; so it was revoked, to the joy of the land thieves. Here, surely, was a case of misdirected energy on the part of Mr. Tawney.

When speaking of the "legitimate functions of the federal government," the constitutional limitations of which Mr. Tawney thinks the administration has exceeded, it is pertinent to suggest that the exercise of a function may sometimes be legitimate, even if without direct sanction in the words of the Constitution. Can there be no growth in functions? Must the republican empire, matured by the growth of centuries, and in the presence of conditions undreamed of by the framers of the Constitution, perform no functions of which the newborn infant was incapable? What about the grant of powers to congress to "provide for the general welfare?" The common sense answer to these questions, the answer of the country's greatest jurists and commentators and statesmen from the days of Marshall through those of Webster to the present time, is a denial of Mr. Tawney's every plea, except that for the awakening of the states to a better appreciation of their own responsibilities under the rights reserved to them in the Constitution.

VIEWED FROM BEHIND THE BARS

President Roosevelt wants to prosecute Harriman, if it is possible. It should be possible. He should be prosecuted, and convicted. He should not be fined, if found guilty of the things he has testified he did. He should be imprisoned.

Judson C. Clements, a Georgia member of the interstate commerce commission, recently said that until some great railroad magnate is placed behind prison bars they will never become impressed with a proper understanding of the seriousness of the law.

Law never has been a serious matter to men of that class. They have ignored and defied it so long that they hold it in utter contempt. Viewed from behind prison bars the law would assume a quite different importance to Mr. Harriman.

Freeport is the Freeport of old. She is there with the strong arm, the big stick, and the determination that never counts a game lost until the last inning is played. There is no team in the minor leagues from which to take a pennant would be esteemed a greater honor by the Champs. We are going to take the pennant again, and while they are still well down in the list, there are indications that it will again be the Pretzels with whom we must do final battle.

The almost unanimous support given the utility bill in the senate is not, as some people are inclined to think, a reason for seeking the "nigger in the woodpile." While confessing to a lack of expert knowledge of such measures, we are inclined to think it bespeaks a growing unanimity of opinion in this state relative to the proper treatment of public service companies.

To Mr. Frank T. Brewster, western Wisconsin circulator for the Free Press, who chose La Crosse as an appropriate spot in which to make Mrs. Virginia Baker of Soldiers Grove his bride, THE TRIBUNE extends fraternal congratulations. A union solemnized amid so pleasant environments should be a long and happy one.

The Tribune's se ismograph recorded a slight earthquake somewhere in the vicinity of the North side on the 2nd inst.

GOVERNORS' SALARIES

(Savannah News.)

Illinois is going to have the highest paid officials in the country. The new salary bill just passed by the legislature raises the salary of the governor from $6,000 to $12,000 a year, which will make him the best paid of American governors.

New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania pay their chief executives $10,000. Massachusetts and Indiana pay $8,000.

Most of the other states pay $5,000. Vermont pays the smallest gubernatorial salary, the amount being $1,500, or a clerk's hire. New Hampshire and Delaware are on a $2,000 basis. South Carolina pays $3,000.

Texas and Connecticut are $4,000 states, although Texas is more than fifty times as big as Connecticut. Georgia is in the $5,000 class.

LOGICAL CANDIDACIES

(Washington Times.)

About this time in the national political quadrennium there is always a good deal heard about "logical" candidacies. It is supposed that a "logical" candidate is one who, by reason of his peculiar relationship to a dominating issue or set of issues, forces himself upon the public attention as the right man for the times and circumstances.

At the present time, for instance, it would seem fair to say that Speaker Cannon is the logical republican candidate, if the party proposes to stand pat on tariff and pretty much everything else, and to let well enough alone. Likewise, if the wish is to have the nation's statecraft dominated for the next four years by the traditions and ideals of the elder statesmen of the senate, Vice President Fairbanks is at once suggested. If the issue is to be the smashing of great combinations by enforcing present laws, then Senator Knox, who breathed the breath of life into the Sherman law, cannot be overlooked. If colonial relations and the Panama canal's future are to be dominating considerations, Secretary Taft easily has the call.

But if the republican party stands for further progress along lines of constructive legislation to regulate corporate interests; if it wants to go farther into the policy of railroad control; if it is to find a valuation of the transportation properties, and to curb their issue of securities in future; if it proposes to give larger power to the interstate commission with a view to greater equity in rate adjustments; if it wants to do these things, on which it has now made a fair beginning, then to whom does logic point?

It seems plain and unquestionable, that if this set of issues is to be pushed forward, then the logical candidate is, first, Theodore Roosevelt; and, second Robert M. La Follette.

LA FOLLETTE FOR PRESIDENT

(Plymouth Review.)

There will be a move made to crystallize the sentiment in the state favorable to making Senator La Follette Wisconsin's candidate for the presidency. It seems as if this were an opportune time for this state to make an effort to secure the presidency for one of its citizens. There is no name, except perhaps that of President Roosevelt, which is more prominently before the American people, and there is no man who is making so gallant a fight for true representative government as our own Senator La Follette. He has placed Wisconsin in the very van of the states in the progressive movement in government. He made a notable record for himself as governor, has almost at a bound risen to eminence as a United States senator, and no one can doubt that he would make the nation a great executive.

In the effort to send a solid La Follette delegation to the next national convention every republican should lend his aid. With an enthusiastic delegation from his own state back of him he may secure the nomination.

QUIPS AND CRANKS AND WANTON WILES

The Forthcoming Fourth

Yes, Independence day, my boy,
Will surely come this year,
And you shall have your share of joy,
Of patriotic cheer.

I'll bring you home a brand new sleigh
And sharpen up your skates,
And on the millpond you shall play
With all your little mates

And, as with boyish glee you run
And glide upon the glare,
Remember how George Washington
Once crossed the Delaware.

And over on the vacant ground
A fort of snow we'll plan,
And I will be the Hessian hound
And you the Minute Man.

We'll wallow deeply in the snow
And think of Valley Forge—
The wintry wallowings and woe
Of the Immortal George.

And we must not forget, my son,
A duty that we owe;
Before the glorious day is done
We'll to the village go.

And, gathered snugly round the red
Hot fire of oak and birch,
We'll hear the Declaration said
In the basement of the church.

Literally the Truth

Two or three generations ago Dr. Samuel Reed was one of the prominent physicians of Boston. His large practice included many patients outside of the city limits, and these he visited in his buggy.

One day he bought a new horse, with which he was much pleased until he discovered that the animal had an insurmountable objection to bridges of all kinds and could not be made to cross one.

As, at this period, it was necessary to cross some bridges in order to reach any one of the surrounding towns, the doctor decided to sell the horse. He did not think it necessary to mention the animal's peculiarity, but was much too honest to misrepresent him, and, after some thought, produced the following advertisement which he inserted in a local paper:

For Sale—A bay horse, warranted sound and kind. The only reason for selling is because the owner is obliged to leave Boston.

"Where were you when the first was fired?"

The wife of a naval officer attached to the Academy at Annapolis has in her employ an Irish servant, who recently gave evidence of nostalgia.

"You ought to be contented and not pine for your old home, Bridget,' said the lady of the house. You are earning good wages, your work is light, every one is kind to you, and you have lots of friends here."

"Yis, mum," sadly replied Bridget; "but it's not the place where I be that makes me so homesick; it is the place where I don't be."—Lippincott's.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

A well known Boston lawyer says that not ago he was astonished to see printed in a newspaper a glowing testimonial from himself as to the benefits to be derived from using somebody's Curequick. The office of the concern was located near his own, and he droped in while out for his lunch.

"See here," he remarked, somewhat forcefully, when in the presence of the manager; "you have printed a testimonial allegedly from me with regard to your confounded stuff—and I never took a drop of it in my life. What do you mean by such a procedure?"

"Is that so?" the manager said, soothingly. "Merely a slight misunderstanding, I assure you, sir, for which I am very sorry. You see, we understood that you had died recently. Take this down, please," he added, turning to a stenographer: "Memorandum: Change signature to sworn testimonial No. 124,546."—Harper's Weekly.

The Great Alaskan Story

BY REX BEACH

Every day meant many dollars to the watcher, and yet it seemed that nature was resolute in thwarting him, for that night the wind freshened and daylight saw the ship hugging the lee of Sledge Island, miles to the westward, while the surf, white as boiling milk, boomed and thundered against the shore.

Word had gone through the street that Bill Wheaton was aboard with a writ, or subpoena, or an alibi, or whatever was necessary to put the "kibosh" on McNamara, so public citement grew. McNamara hoarded his gold in the Alaska Bank, and it was taken for granted that there would lie the scene of the struggle. No one supposed for an instant that the usurper would part with the treasurer peasably.

On the third morning the ship lay abreast of the town again and a lifeboat was seen to make off from her, whereupon the idle population streamed towards the beach.

"She'll make to the surf all right, but then watch out."

"We'd better make ready to haul 'em out," said another. "It's mighty dangerous." And sure enough, as the skiff came rushing in through the breakers she was caught.

She had made it past the first line, soaring over the bar on a foamy roller-crest like a stormdriven gull winging in towards the land. The wiry figure of Bill Wheaton crouched in the stern while two sailors fought with their oars. As they gathered for their rush through the last zone of froth, a great comber rose out of the sea behind them, rearing high above their heads. The crowd at the surff's edge shouted. The boat wavered, sucked back into the ocean's angry maw, and with a crash the deluge engulfed them. There remained nothing but a swirling flood through which the lifeboat emerged bottom up, amid a tangle of oars, grating, and gear.

Men rushed into the water, and the next roller pounded them back upon the marble-hard sand. There came the sound of splitting wood, and then a group swarmed in waist-deep and bore out a dripping figure. It was a hempen-headed seaman, who shook the water from his mane and grinned when his breath had come.

A step farther down the beach the by-standers seized a limp form which the tide rolled to them. It was the second sailor, his scalp split from a blow of the gunwale. Nowhere was Wheaton.

Glenister had plunged to the rescue first, a heaving-line about his middle, and although buffeted about he had reached the wreck, only to miss sight of the lawyer utterly. He had time for but a glance when he was drawn outward by the undertow till the line at his waist grew taut, then the water surged over him and he was hurled high up on the beach again. He staggered dizzily back to the struggle, when suddenly a wave lifted the capsized cutter and righted it, and out from beneath shot the form of Wheaton, grimly clutching the liferopes. They brought him in choking and breathless.

"I got it," he said, slapping his streaming breast. "It's all right, Glenister. I knew what delay meant so I took a long chance with the surf." The terrific ordeal he had undergone had blanched him to the lips, his legs wabbled uncertainly, and he would have fallen but for the young man, who thrust an arm about his waist and led him up into the town.

"I went before the Circuit Court of Appeals in 'Frisco," he explained later, "and they issued orders allowing an appeal from this court and gave me a writ of supersedeas directed against old Judge Stillman. That takes the litigation out of his hands altogether, and directs McNamara to turn over the Midas and all the gold he's got. What do you think of that? I did better than I expected."

Glenister wrung his hand silently while a great satisfaction came upon him. At last this waiting was over, and his peaceful yielding to injustice had borne fruit; had proven the better course after all, as the girl had prophesied. He could go to her now with clean hands. The mine was his again. He would lay it at her feet, telling her once more of his love and the change it was working in him. He would make her see it, make her see that beneath the harshness his years in the wild had given him, his love for her was gentle and true and all-absorbing. He would bid her be patient till she saw he had mastered himself, till he could come with his soul in harness.

"I am glad I didn't fight when they jumped us," he said. "Now we'll get our property back and all the money they took out—that is, if McNamara hasn't salted it."

"Yes; all that's necessary is to file the documents, then serve the Judge and McNamara. You'll be back on Anvil Creek tomorrow."

Having placed their documents on record at the court-house, the two men continued to McNamara's office. He met them with courtesy.

"I heard you had a narrow escape this morning, Mr. Wheaton. Too bad! What can I do for you?"

The lawyer rapidly outlined his position and stated in conclusion:

"I filed certified copies of these orders with the clerk of the court ten minutes ago, and now I make formal demand upon you to turn over the Midas to Messrs. Glenister and Dextry, and also to return all the gold-dust in your safe-deposit boxes in accordance with this writ."

He handed his documents to McNamara, who tossed them on his desk without examination.

"Well," said the politician, quietly, "I won't do it."

Had he been slapped in the face the attorney would not have been more astonished.

"Why—you—"

"I won't do it, I said," McNamara repeated, sharply. "Don't think for a minute that I haven't gone into this fight armed for everything. Writs of supersedeas! Bah!" He snapped his fingers.

"We'll see whether you'll obey or not," said Wheaton and when he and Glenister were outside he continued:

"Let's get to the Judge quick."

As they neared the Golden Gate Hotel they spied McNamara entering. It was evident that he had slipped from the rear door of his office and beaten them to the judicial ear.

"I don't like that," said Glenister. "He's up to something."

So it appeared, for they were fifteen minutes in gaining access to the magistrate and then found McNamara with him. Both men were astounded at the change in Stillman's appearance. During the last month his weak face had shrunk and altered until vacillation was betrayed in every line, and he had acquired the habit of furtively watching McNamara's slightest movement. It seemed that the part he played sat heavily upon him.

The Judge examined the papers perfunctorily, and, although his air was deliberate, his fingers made clumsy work of it. At last he said:

"I regret that I am forced to doubt the authenticity of these documents."

"My Heavens, man!" Wheaton cried. "They're certified copies of orders from your superior court. They grant the appeal that you have denied us and take the case out of your hands altogether. Yes—and they order this man to surrender the mine and everything connected with it. Now, sir, we want you to enforce these orders."

Stillman glanced at the silent man in the window and replied:

"You will, of course, proceed regularly and make application in court in the proper way, but I tell you now that I won't do anything in the matter."

Wheaton stared at him fixedly until the old man snapped out:

"You say they are certified copies. How do I know they are? The signatures may be false. Maybe you signed them yourself."

The lawyer grew very white at this and stammered until Glenister drew him out of the room.

'Come, come,", he said, "we'll carry this thing through in open court. Maybe his nerve will go back on him then. McNamara has him hypnotized, but he won't dare refuse to obey the orders of the Circuit Court of Appeals."

"He won't eh? Well, what do you think he's doing right now?" said Wheaton. "I must think. This is the boldest game I ever played in. They told me things while I was in 'Frisco which I couldn't believe, but I guess they're true. Judges don't disobey the orders of their courts of appeal unless there is power back of them."

They proceeded to the attorney's office, but had not been there long before Slapjack Simms burst in upon them.

"Hell to pay!" he panted. "McNamara's taking your dust out of the bank."

"What's that?" they cried.

"I goes into the bank just now for an assay on some quartz samples. The assayer is busy, and I walk back into his room, and while I'm there in trots McNamara in a hurry. He don't see me, as I'm inside the private office, and I overhear him tell them to get his dust out of the vault quick."

"We've got to stop that," said Glenister. "If he takes ours, he'll take the Swedes', too. Simms, you run up to the Pioneer company and tell them about it. If he gets that gold out of there, nobody knows what 'll become of it. Come on, Bill."

He snatched his hat and ran out of the room, followed by the others. That the loose-jointed Slapjack did his work with expedition was evidenced by the fact that the Swedes were close upon their heels as the two entered the bank. Others had followed, sensing something unusual, and the space within the doors filled rapidly. At the disturbance the clerks suspended their work, the barred doors of the safe-deposit vault clanged to, and the cashier laid hand upon the navy Colt's at his elbow. "What's the matter?" he cried.

"We want Alec McNamara," said Glenister.

The manager of the bank appeared, and Glenister spoke to him through the heavy wire netting.

"Is McNamara in there?"

No one had ever known Morehouse to lie. "Yes, sir." He spoke hesitatingly, in a voice full of the slow music of Virginia. He is in here. What of it?"

"We hear he's trying to move that dust of ours and we won't stand for it. Tell him to come out and not hide in there like a dog."

At these words the politician appeared beside the Southerner, and the two conversed softly an instant, while the impatience of the crowd grew to anger. Some one cried.

"Let's go in and drag him out," and the rumble at this was not pleasant. Morehouse raised his hand.

"Gentlemen, Mr. McNamara says he doesn't intend to take any of the gold away."

"Then he's taken it already."

"No, he hasn't."

The receiver's course had been quickly chosen at the interruption. It was not wise to anger these men too much. Although he had planned to get the money into his own possession, he now thought it best to leave it here for the present. He could come back at any time when they were off guard and get it. Beyond the door against which he stood lay three hundred thousand dollars—weighed, sacked, sealed, and ready to move out of the custody of this Virginian whose confidence he had tried so fruitlessly to gain.

PAYS BENEFITS TO STRIKING TYPOS

MILWAUKEE PRINTERS TO GIVE WEEKLY AMOUNTS

$10 TO MARRIED MEMBERS

No New Firms Give In, and Situation Still Remains Unchanged

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 6.—Benefits will be paid to the striking job printers within a week if the strike continues. Typographical union, No. 23, will pay $7 a week to unmarried and $10 a week to married men. The executive committee has also made arrangements to pay more in individual cases where it is shown that the amounts are not sufficient for living expenses. No additional assessments will be made upon any member of the union who is not on strike. An assessment of 2 per cent of each member's salary has been levied for some time as a defense fund from which all strike benefits are being paid. At the present time there are 2,000 union job printers out of work on account of strikes throughout the country and during the past two years the union has paid $2,000,000 in strike benefits.

The situation is practically the same as it was on Monday when the strike began. The 115 men who quit work at that time are still out. No new firms signed the agreement.

That half of the men who are out on strike can be put to work throughout the state is claimed by Mr. Colbert, who states that he has received offers from master printers in Beloit to take many of the men.

HOLY JUMPERS VS. WAUKESHA SHERIFF

BRUTAL TREATMENT ALLEGED IN OFFICIAL PAPER

JUMPERS DESTURBED PEACE

Kept Sheriff and Family Awake. Jumped and Prayed at the Same Time.

Shouting and praying day and night for deliverance from the clutches of the law, the Holy Jumpers in their home at Waukesha believe themselves martyrs to the cause of Christianity. Seventeen of them who were arrested a week ago last night for disturbing the peace will be haled into police court on Saturday for trial. They were thrown into jail when arrested, but they now are at liberty on their own recognizance.

A thrilling story of what they declare the persecution is told by the Holy Jumpers in their official paper issued this week, and a bitter attack is made upon George L. Dwinnell, sheriff of Waukesha county, and his deputy, Michael Clancy, a brother of Thomas A. Clancy, Milwaukee's fire chief. The charges made by the Holy Jumpers are denied vigorously by both the sheriff and his deputy.

Struck by Sheriff.

The Holy Jumpers, according to their own story, were arrested for disorderly conduct during their first street meeting of the season. They say they were neither blockading the street nor disturbing the peace. They were then thrown into jail, they say, their bibles were taken from them and they "were commanded not to kneel down, nor pray nor hold any meeting in the jail."

"One of our preachers quietly knelt upon his knees and commenced to pray and was immediately struck down by the fist of the burly sheriff," says the official organ of the Holy Jumpers.

PACKER RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS BY HARD FALL

HEAD CUT AND FACE BRUISED

Well Known Citizen, Riding Saddle Horse on King Street Meets With Serious Accident

Mr. Andrew Boyd, of the Langdon Boyd Packing company, was q ite seriously injured about 9 o'cl ck last evening by being thrown fr m his horse while returning home.

Mr. Boyd was riding up King street when the accident occurred. When in front of the Y. M. C. A. building he struck his horse with the whip. The animal jumped and threw Mr. Boyd to the pavement. He fell on his head, cutting a deep gash over his right eye and bruising his face.

He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken into the Y. M. C. A. building and then conveyed to his home, 139 South Tenth street, in the ambulance. Dr. G. J. Egan was called and attended to the injured gentleman. Although not in a precarious condition, Mr. Boyd will be laid up for several days.

CHILD, NUDE, LOST IN WOODS

MONROE, Wis., June 6.—After wandering through the woods northeast of this city alone for ten hours and tearing most of his clothes from him by struggling through the underbrush, little Herman Meyer, 3 years old, was found at 8 o'clock at night, his skin blue from the cold. The child wandered away from home in the morning.

SHOWED THE MINISTER

And Got Him in Line.

"In a minister's family in Los Angeles where I was visiting sometime ago, the wife complained of serious indigestion and dyspepsia. She admitted that she used coffee and said she more than half believed that was the trouble. I told her that I knew it was, for I had gone through with the experience myself and had only been cured when I left off coffee and took up Postum Food Coffee.

"She said she had tried the Postum, both for herself and her husband, but they did not like it. With her permission, I made Postum next morning myself, and boiled it full fifteen minutes after the real boiling of the pot began. Then when it was served, it was a rich deep brown color and had the true flavour and food value that every Postum maker knows. It is all folly to talk about trying to make Postum with one or two minutes' steeping.

"You can't get something good for nothing. Postum must be well boiled, and to keep it from boiling over, use small lump of butter, perhaps twice the size of a pea. That morning the minister and his wife liked Postum so well that their whole lives were changed on the question of diet and they abandoned coffee at once and for all time.

"Now after a hard day's work, they are comforted, refreshed, and rested by a cup of well-made Postum for supper. They are both enthusiastic in its praise. The wife has entirly recovered from her dyspepsia. I will not go into the details of my own case, except to say that I was a desperate sufferer with dyspepsia and discovered by leaying off coffee that coffee was the cause of it. I quickly got well when I took up Postum Food Coffee. I earnestly hope many more coffee drinkers may get their eyes open." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

MINNESOTA AND THE NORTHWEST

STEPS TAKEN TO ADVERTISE ST. PAUL

WORK TO FURTHER THE CAMPAIGN OF PUBLICITY

EXPERTS IN CHARGE OF WORK

Consolidated Bureau Accepts Offer of Town Criers Club

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 6.—Definite steps were taken today towards the organization of the practical work of advertising the city of St. Paul, as contemplated in the campaign which the consolidated publicity bureau represents. While it is yet impossible to complete the permanent organization of the work, plans were adopted under which the preliminary work will be undertaken at once. The consolidated publicity bureau, which met the evening before at the Commercial club with a large and enthusiastic membership present, by formal vote accepted the tender of the Town Criers' club of the men and material with which to begin the real work of city publicity, and at noon yesterday the Town Criers' club which embraces all of the working advertising experts of the city, met and immediately appointed a representative to take general charge of the work thus undertaken for the consolidated bureau, the chairman thus selected being authorized to appoint his own assistants, thus forming a small and active working committee for the prosecution of the work.

Prior to the election of a secretary to take charge of the practical details of city publicity and advertising, the consolidated publicity bureau must first accumulate the funds with which the city's advertising is to be prosecuted. It has been deemed impracticable at this time to elect such a man, who must of necessity be an expert not alone in the advertising field but in the field of national publicity as well. This election will, therefore, be deferred until sufficient funds are in the possession of the treasurer of the bureau to insure the prosecution of the work.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 6.—The body of Mrs. Katherine McCart, who has been missing since May 24, was found late last night in an abandoned well on the farm of George Katelbach, near Long Lake, Hennepin county, bearing every indication of having been murdered.

Katelbach, who is suspected of murdering the woman, has disappeared. He was last seen late yesterday afternoon.

DAVENPORT, Ia., June 6.—George Mengel, a wealthy Davenport brewer, is seeking a divorce from his young wife, formerly Blanche Meier, a beautiful German actress. The couple were secretly married at Aledo, Ill., in 1905 and Mengel now alleges that the actress already had a husband and married him for his money.

BRING IT TO QUICK ISSUE

OFFICIALS CONTEMPLATE COST IN RAILROAD SUIT

RISK CONTEMPT OF COURT

State Action to Enforce Rates Enjoined—Plan Under Consideration

ST. PAUL, June 6.—It is possible that before the end of the week proceedings that will dangerously verge on the bounds of contempt of court will be taken in the injunction suits against the state now pending in the federal court.

It was said without reserve about the capitol today that Attorney General Young or one of his assistants was contemplating a step that would bring the suits which have for their end the right of Minnesota and other states to regulate railroad rates to a quick head.

The step in contemplation is nothing more than a complete ignoring of the federal injunction order in the immediate bringing of a suit in the state courts to compel the enforcement of the rate law now in controversy. If not done by the attorney general's department the duty will fall on the railway commissioners, who are also included in the federal enjoining order. This order enjoined the attorney general, the railway commissioners, certain shippers and certain officials from taking any steps to compel enforcement until the right of the state to make such laws had been passed upon by the federal courts.

Such action would be contempt and would result in the party or parties bringing it being jailed, but it is thought that from it would come quick results. It would call for habeas corpus proceedings and result in something at once, where, as things stand now, the case might be dragged on for years and the entire law-making and enforcement machinery of the state be completely tied up.

WHEELBARROW CANDIDATE IS ARRESTED

IOWA CITY, Ia., June 6.—Andrew Townsend Hisey, "candidate" for president of the United States, was arrested here and placed in the city hall jail. The arrest was the outgrowth of a disturbance on the university campus and the streets. University students drew Hisey's buggy through the town and stopped at corners where the old man addressed them. The speeches drew crowds and blockaded the streets. The police finally took the would-be successor of Roosevelt to jail. Five hundred "rah, rah" boys followed and surrounded the jail.

Murderer MAY BE INSANE

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., June 6.—Stephen Hanson Furua, who is under indictment on the charge of murdering his wife and little son, is being examined as to his sanity, and if found to be insane, will be brought to the hospital in this city. Otherwise he is to be placed on trial for the crime within a few days. The murder was committed in the town of Tansem, twenty-five miles north of here.

HEIRS ARE CUT OFF

GRAND FORKS, N. D., June 6.—Complying with a request of the deceased his will should not be read until after he was in his grave, Edward Farry's last will and testament was not opened until after the funeral. The heirs found plenty of room for dissatisfaction, as the old man had cut them off with only a few little bequests and gave the bulk of his fortune to St. Bernard's academy, a Catholic educational institution, and some Catholic charitable organizations.

HARRY HOLMAN AT TH E BIJOU THIS WEEK

APPROVE ATHLETICS

Ripon College Is in Favor of Clean Sports

RIPON, Wis., June 6.—Ripon college is openly and avowedly in favor of athletics, though it stands as well for pure amateurism in college sports. With all the advocacy heard from various sources of the abolition of athletic sports in colleges and universities, there has not been such a suggestion at Ripon, and there is not likely to be, as Ripon college regards the athletic development of the student as important factors in college life, and in this statement intercollegiate athletics are included. Mr. Hughes, in speaking of his ideas on athletics in the college, said:

"I regard athletics and intercollegiate athletics as important factors in college life. I think there is no need, however, of tolerating any abuses in their conduct. I have no sympathy with recent talk of giving up athletics with the hope of purifying college sport. An editorial in one of the Milwaukee papers, it seems to me, hit the mark, when it advised the college presidents who saw evils in sports to correct them. At Ripon we have a high class man, a member of the faculty, who ranks in scholarship, teaching ability and title, with our best professors. He has full authority to deal with all athletic conditions. He consults the president freely, and we see no need for abolishing for any period, however, short, any of our athletic relations. We have full authority to abolish abuses, we frankly accept the responsibility it involves, and I am sure our athletic training and our athletic games of all sorts have been the means of decided good for the individual student. Our position is a straightforward one. We favor intercollegiate athletics. We actually pay as much attention to the individual student as to the training of the men who do not enter intercollegiate games.

"While Prof. Luehring, our physical director, is doing some excellent work with the students who are in the athletic teams, he is also doing fine work for those who are not in any team. We like to win, and win whenever we can, and I take as much pleasure in the victory as the boys, but I am proud of our boys when they show themselves good losers. It is a good loser that usually wins.

"The drinking feature complained of in some coleges does not exist here, as the manner in which we control athletics entirely eliminates this feature, and we reduce betting to a minimum. Yeiling we heartily approve of, and we make no effort to reduce it."

FIRE FIGHTER'S CONVENTION

ST. CLOUD, Minn., June 6.—With gala day attire slightly dampened, St. Cloud is welcoming 1,500 firemen guests at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Minnesota Fire Department association. Almost every town in the state is represented. Strings of lights are stretched across the streets and around entire buisiness blocks. The official welcome was by Mayor Brown, who turned over the keys of the city to the firemen. Hon. G. D. Wright, mayor of Luverne, responded for the convention, reviewing briefly the early organization of the association, paying special tribute to R. O. Strong and recommending a monument be raised for him.

WIRES ROOSEVELT FOR COIN

DETROIT, Mich., June 6.—The following message was forwarded from the office of the Western Union Telegraph company:

"Theodore Roosevelt, president, Washington, D. C.—Please wire me $50,000 (fifty thousand dollars) at once from the United States treasury to save the American cause.—Estelle S. Stevens, 903 Twelfth street, Detroit."

A visit to the home of the sender developed the fact that she had had nothing to eat for several days and had been served by the landlord with a five-days' notice to leave her home for non-payment of rent. On the wall was a large portrait of President Roosevelt, and an honorable discharge of her deceased husband from the army in 1865, after four years service. The woman is temporarily demented and will be cared for.

Corliss, acting assistant state's attorney for the county, has applied to the supreme court for a rehearing in the recent temperance commissioner case in which the court handed down a decision declaring the law creating the temperance commissioner unconstitutional. ARE NOT NOTIFIED YET

Local Brewers Have Not Learned of Discharge

As yet the Trades and Labor council of La Crosse has received no notification from the American Federation of Labor of the action taken last week against the 400 brewery workers locals over the country, expelling them from the federation because they did not comply with the action of the national body and drop all members who were not brewers. The next meeting of the Trades and Labor council will be held one week from the coming Friday, June 14, and at this time it is likely something wil be heard of the matter.

Before the local unions hear anything of the action the American Federation of Labor will notify the International Brewer's organization, and this body in turn notifies its locals. The labor council of this city wil be notified of what action to take through the American Federation of Labor.

Any man might rais whiskers, but his wife would probably raise objections.

With Better Foreign News and Some Steadying Orders Market Shows Buoyancy

CHICAGO, Ill., June 6.—The wheat market opened weak and a fraction lower, but after a day of uninteresting dealings, closed with a snap 2⅛ cents above the opening.

Corn and oats were lower in sympathy with the opening weakness in wheat. The cash demand became very good in corn and wheat which steadied the general list.

Liverpool closing cables were ⅜ off for wheat and ⅛ off for corn. This indicates a stronger position than expected. The report that foreign houses were liquidating has been denied and wheat displayed strength and advanced rapidly to 2@2¾ cents from the loss closing firm. Oats did not participate in the advance but sold down 1¾ cent for July on heavy profit taking. Corn closed firm.

NOT PEACE, BUT WAR, FOR PHONES

INDEPENDENT MEN WANT NO TRUCK WITH BELL

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH

Proposal Introduced to Project Complete Independent Telegraph and Cable Service.

CHICAGO, June 6.—United action by 10,000 independent telephones companies of the United States and Canada in the building of an international telegraph system was urged at the annual convention of the International Independent Telephone association in Chicago today. H. E. Hulet of Chicago, one of a group of telephone managers with extensive interests in the central states, declared that the independents can command the support of business interests all over he country in the construction and operation of the proposed system.

"Never has there been so good a time to enter the telegraph field as the present," Mr. Hulett declared. "The Western Union and Postal companies have within the last three months practicallyconsolidated. They have raised rates from 20 to 60 per cent all over the country. They have deprived the public of part of the service it has been accustomed to all through the east. In New York and other eastern cities the combination has abolished accommodations in scores of hotels.

Financing Difficult.

"In common with all interests the independent telephone companies have found difficulty in financing their properties. This is particularly true of the long distance lines. If they will unite, however, in the construction of a telegraph system they can raise millions, commanding the solid support of the business interests, the farmers and the small investors everywhere. With the money they can complete at once the independent telephone long distance lines as well as build the telegraph system and operate both at fair rates to the public and to themselves.

Peace? No, War!

Plans for peace between the independent interests and the American Telephone & Telegraph company, which provided for independent supremacy in local centers throughout the country on condition that the Bell interests were given the long distance business in competitive territory fell flat today. Instead of favoring agreements to end the long warfare between the conflicting companies the convention adopted resolutions denouncing "any affiliation or connection of independent and Bell companies anywhere on the American continent as being injurious to the people."

While rejecting the peace plans as to tits competitor the convention declared in favor of peace in the independent ranks. A resolution was passed forbidding any independent company making efforts to enter the field of another independent company. The convention voted for expulsion of such offending companies from the association.

Great Growth Shown

The growth of the independent movement was shown in the report of John A. Harney of Cleveland assistant secretary. It was shown that the association which had 7,000 members a year ago has a present membership of 10,046. The membership includes companies in every Canadian province, in Mexico, Cuba and Porto Rico.

ORCHARD

Steve Adams for a chance to shoot him.

He hid a bomb under a door mat at the Lineforth flats ni San Francisco to kill Bradley, the former superintendent of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine.

A Willing Assassin

Accepting his own words, he was a most willing assassin, ready at any time to go anywhere and shoot or dynamite any one. He apparently had no personal hatred of his victim, and he details a murder in the identical tones that he tells that his crimes were suggested, paid and approved by the chiefs of the Western Federation of Miners, President Chas. H. Moyer, Secretary William D. Haywood, Executive Committeeman L. J. Simpkins, George A. Pettibone, or some leader of a miners' union in Coeur d'Alene, Cripple Creek or Telluride. In Orchard's code there was nothing but to kill and destroy, assassinate his man or blow up a mine.

Just a Butcher Brute

No impulse other than to do as he was told, he says, get his money and wait for the next bloody job that was to be given.

Whether Orchard furnishes evidence that convicts Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone or not, his confession of wanton taking of life is shocking. No criminal court has ever had such a witness, and he stands alone among the criminals of the world as an instinctive butcher of human beings

He says, in direct simple words, that he murdered for hire, that he began killing when he set off the powder that blew up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine at Wardner in 1899, and that he has been slaying at intervals ever since. This recital in the presence of hundreds of men and women, court jurors, lawyers, and the man he accuses of inspiring his crimes impresses his hearers by its calmness.

A man may feel that he is doing good to the greatest number when he is looking out for number one.

Judge Brindley Decides Night Was so Dark There Could be no Real Evidence of Guilt

Charles W. Young, an old soldier, 1426 Rose street, charged with pointing a deadly weapon at Ed Van Dorn, 1442 Rose street, was dismissed when the case was called in county court this morning.

The trouble occurred between Van Dorn and Young on the night of Memorial day, when Young, who is an old soldier, was said to have been celebrating. Young alleged that it was not he, but Van Dorn had been celebrating, and that he did not fire the shots heard by Van Dorn.

Inasmuch as it was shown that the night was dark, and the adversaries were over 100 feet apart, the court could not see how the witnesses could discern which way the pistol was pointed if there was one, and the case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

SUES OVER "HOMELY" PHOTOS

Judge, However, Says Pictures Are Prettier Than Subject

CLEVELAND, O., June 6.—Justice Green yesterday decided the photographs made by S. J. Ritchie, a Superior avenue N. E. photographer, were "prettier" than the subject, John Vogel.

"They show a homlier man than I am," argued Vogel. "I can hardly recognize myself when I look at the photographs Ritchie made."

Ritchie asserted that the proofs were homlier than the pictures.

"I made Vogel good-looking by touching up the pictures," was Ritchie's contention, and he exhibited two of the photographs to support it.

Justice Green decided against Vogel, who immediately announced he would carry the case to the common pleas court.

Vogel had sued to prevent Ritchie's collecting on the photographs.

Wanted: A Brain!

An employer in the City advertised for a man to fill an important position. This employer is a man of keen business attainments, and has built up in a very few years a trade which he could not afford to give up even to accept a

Salary of $10,000 per annum

which had been offered him.
It is obvious that any one, to meet his requirements, must have business qualifications of a high order, such as are only possessed by a man of brains, and to such a man he offers high salary and other inducements. He wants Brains!!!

Where are the Brains?

Are you satisfied with the kind that only earn for you $10.00, $15.00, or $30.00 a week? Positions with high salaries are open, but it takes brains to fill them. Argue around Robin Hood's barn from now to Eternity, and you come back to first principles, viz., that and renews the waste and wear that goes on every minute.

Food Builds Brains

If you want to make money you must have a strong money-making brain, and to secure that you must eat food containing the elements which especially feed the brain and nerve tissues.

Grape-Nuts food

contains these brain-building elements. The food is made of wheat and barley, and in these field grains an all-wise Providence has hidden small quantities of Phosphate of Potash, the vital food for the brain and nerve centres. Grape-Nuts possesses this important element, which is lacking in white bread, potatoes, mush, etc. Besides, in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts the starch in the grains is changed into a form of sugar or pre-digested, so that it is easily and quickly assimilated.

Eat Grape-Nuts ten days and see how effectively it quickens and sharpens the brain power.
